

Copernicus Publications
The Innovative Open Access Publisher

NEWS

15 December 2014

Institutional agreement with TUM

Copernicus Publications and the University Library of the Technical University Munich (Technische Universität München, TUM) are glad to announce their agreement on central billing of article processing charges.

Publishing a paper in one of Copernicus' open-access journals has become even easier for scientists associated with the TUM. From 2015 on, financial matters will be settled directly between the publisher and the library of the TUM if the corresponding author is a member of one of TUM's faculties.

With this new agreement, which is valid for submissions from 01 January 2015 onwards, the TU Munich is in very good company: the Max Planck Society, the University of Göttingen, several research centres of the Helmholtz Association, the University of Bremen, and the ETH Zurich support the open-access publications of their scientists with a similar contract.

For more information on this agreement visit:

http://publications.copernicus.org/for_authors/financial_support.html

You publish. We care.

